

NANCY WYNNE ATTENDS BATTLE OF FLOWERS AT COUNTRY CLUB

Brilliant Affair Attracts Number of Persons to Bala. Automobile Parade Very Handsome—Booths Most Unusual—Other Matters

The battle of flowers was most successful from an artistic and spectacular point of view. It would have been hard indeed, to say which booth was most unique in point of color and decoration. There were no less than 300 sides, and their costumes in the Academy Fling, in which all joined, lent all the local color that might be needed for a story. The parade of the troops who marched on Broad street yesterday afternoon kept many of the people who otherwise would have been interested in the fête in town; for Philadelphia has little heart and little time for gaiety these days with war so close upon us and men of the United States being mowed down from three sides by their cowardly opponents. So many stayed in town to see our boys marching proudly by praying in their hearts as they watched that they would come through safely. To go back to the Country Club, there was no tournament after all, but the motorcar parade was very pretty. One entry especially, a large basket of brown moss with a wide handle tied with a huge yellow satin ribbon bow, was most unique and very beautiful. The aesthetic dancing was lovely. Members of the Philadelphia Music Club danced in a group and posed most artistically. Mrs. Yorkie Stevenson, who worked very hard to make the battle successful, was here and there and every where all afternoon, looking very charming in a white serge suit and small white silk sports hat. Mrs. Cornelius Stevenson and Mrs. Frederick Thurston Mason also lent their support to the affair, as did Mrs. John Converse, Mrs. Sydney Thayer, Mrs. David Lewis and a host of others.

Did you ever see anything like the engagements which have been announced during the last week? Perhaps it is the rumor of war. Whatever it is, they are piling on thick and fast and more and more each day. There were two down boys at Albert Thompson and Anne Morris engaged to each, respectively, and now Eleanor Cuyler's has been announced to Joe Walker, of New York. Of course no one was surprised, as Joe has been over from New York many a time to see Eleanor and has been here for every dance and entertainment that the Cuylers have given. I rather expected they would announce it at the dinner dance they gave on the 9th of June. Eleanor is particularly stunning looking, very stately and dignified, and has had an exceptionally good time this winter. She was introduced into society during the last season. I understand there has been no date set for the wedding as yet.

Is it not lovely how Elizabeth Latta's great talent is being recognized in other places besides her own home town? Mrs. Hawkinsworth, that very enterprising New York woman, has gotten up a series of three musicals, which will be given on June 20, July 14 and July 23, at the homes of three women in Rumson, N. J., the first to be held at Mrs. William Barbour's, the second at Mrs. John J. Knox's and the third at the home of Mrs. Henry Caesar. There will be a number of specially interested are Elizabeth Latta and Constance Binney, of New York. Miss Binney, you know, and has danced here on various occasions. She is as dainty and cunning as a thistle-down and pretty as a picture as well.

When gentlemen go in for professions it is very gratifying to see them succeeding; and when they are as graceful and charming as Miss Binney and has the delightful personality and exquisite voice of Miss Latta there can be no doubt of their success. Then, too, they have that specially delightful attribute—youth—which carries so much before it.
